BREMERTON – A 6,700-square-foot expansion project is underway at Kitsap Conference Center at Bremerton Harborside.

Construction started in October, according to Columbia Hospitality, which manages the property.

Rice Fergus Miller is the architect, and Jones and Roberts Co. is the general contractor. Kitsap Transit is the owner.

The $1.1 million project is taking place on the center's previously unoccupied third floor.

Kitsap Conference Center currently has 10,000 square feet of meeting and event space. The expansion will increase its capacity to 1,100 people, up from 750.

The new space will have an outdoor balcony and will be able to be walled off for smaller groups.

It's scheduled to open in the summer of 2014.
