

HEALTH PRECAUTIONS AT KITSAP CONFERENCE CENTER

The Kitsap Conference Center is committed to protecting the well-being of our guests, team members and business partners. During every flu season, our team implements a set of protocols designed to prevent communicable sicknesses and considering the recent Coronavirus, we have increased these efforts significantly. Health and wellness is always a top priority for us, and with the recent concerns we have increased our protocols substantially including:

- Increasing hand-sanitizing stations throughout the conference center to allow guests to clean their hands more frequently;
- Increasing the cleaning of high-volume, high-touch areas, including paper towel dispensers, vanity tops, counters and door handles;
- Monitoring health departments at the city, state and federal levels to ensure we receive the latest updates and protocols; and
- Distributing critical information among key team members and business partners to help prevent communicable sicknesses throughout the venue.
